

The National Bear Garden in Uprear—St.

launched in return. Finally, by the vigorous use of the gavel, he succeeded in drowning all other voices but his own. The official reporter was directed to write out the objectionable words of Voorhees and to hand them to the clerk. While he was doing this several democrats were trying to speak, but they were drowned out with cries of order from the republican side of the House. Mr. San Cex boasted that the remarks of Hoar should also be taken down, as they were equally objectionable. Then there was another cry of order, mingled with calls of "Sit down!" "Dry up!" "Keep on your own side!"

Repealed by this bill—Salaries of United States officers and employees, $561,983; special taxes on banks and bankers, $1,139,462; other special taxes on banks and bankers, $5,801,455; gross receipts, $6,390,993; sales taxes, $2,206,834; income, about $14,800,000; legataries' estate taxes, $1,248,837; successions, $1,189,750; scheduled A, $882,860; passports, $20,450; miscellaneous, $1,240,150. Total, $43,697,774.

Taxes retained—Spirits, $45,026,102; tobacco, $23,440,705; fermented liquors, $6,069,850; banks and bankers, $2,196,064; income, about $20,229,939; stamps, $10,420,710; gas, $2,116,006; penalties collected, $877,088; excess of gaugers' fees, $4,829,220. Total, $119,441,570.

use improper means to influence the vote of members on the Georgia question. There is no evidence that any Senator was influenced, but it is not unusual for any Senator to be influenced by the publication of the Chronicle, enjoying to reflect the confidence of the administration and of the dominant party in Congress, would have an influence on the voting of a Senator. It is not, however, and should not be, a matter of public concern, and should not be a source of any sense of duty which it would not possess if it were known that the insertion of many of the articles it published bearing on the Georgia question was for the purpose of obtaining large prices by a person having an interest to produce a particular result. As there is no law for punishing such attempts they must be left to the discretion of the Senate, and to the judgment of an enlightened and able body.

the rebellion to retach and revivify the lost cause. He would never consent to place his own name in the same list of years and may with those of Davy Crockett and Sam Houston. Personal pride would forbid his affiliation with prepared traitors and enemies of his country.

THE GEORGIA CORRUPTION INVESTIGATION.

Without concluding Mr. Howard yielded the report to Mr. McIntosh, rep. of Ill., who made a demand from the Judiciary Committee that the committee directing inquiry as to whether corrupt means had been used to influence votes of Senators on the Georgia bill. He said the report was unanimously approved and was modified by the statement of two members of the committee. It was ordered to be printed.

At half-past four o'clock the Senate adjourned.

was commercial intercourse. With Rome there was no commercial intercourse. It was a sui generis power, having nothing to do with the commerce world. The chief ground upon which his colleague (Mr. Banks) urged his amendment was that Rome was a spiritual power. But the only method preserving peace and harmony with such a power was to abstain from all political connection with heart was ever tender towards them. He had extended to them the charity of his heart. There was nothing in his record of giving or in some of his private acts that would lead me to suppose that they were objects of his charity or kindness. Consequently he had not needed to hear his friends and bitter declamations against the Government. There was no reason in the past history of this country, so far as I could discern, for the relations which he had so often of glory in the children of the school speak of the ancient and gray-headed professors spoke of the savants throughout the earth spoke of the Count of Montecristo. He had not recommended himself so far as history was concerned, but it was its present title, its religious aspect, that

CONTINUED ON TENTH PAGE